ITALIANS' REVIEW OF WAR FOR YEAR

Bestows Great Praise on General Cadorna, the Italian Chief of Staff.

ROME, July 29.—Complying with a request from the Associated Press, the Italian authorities have prepared a statement reviewing the last year of war from the Italian viewpoint. Although the anniversaries that are marked by the early days of August close the second year of the war for Germany, Austria-Hungary, Russia, France and Great Britain, Italy has only a little more than passed the first anniversary of its participation in the conflict, which began May 23, 1915. But in the view of the Italian authorities, Italy's alignment with the Entente powers has been no small factor in checking the successes of the Central powers.

In the statement officially prepared for the Associated Press, great praise is bestowed on General Cadorna, the Italian chief of staff, as "a powerful organizer and cautious strategist," who is declared to have conducted his campaign against Austria with a view to rendering the greatest possible aid to the Entente Allies. It is asserted that the early reverses of the Russians might have run into complete disaster if Italy had not just at the time of the Russian retreat entered the conflict and forced Austria to employ a vast number of its troops on the southern boundaries. Further, the offensives which the Italians have launched from time to time rendered it impossible for Austria to carry out its purpose of sending troops and artillery either to the aid of the German crown prince for the attack on Verdun or to fight the Russians.

As given out, the Italian statement reads as follows:

"The war which Italy is fighting with its allies is imperfectly understood abroad in its ideals as well as in its technical development, thus needing explanations even after a year of Italy's participation in the conflict.

For Ten Months.

"When the European war began Italy held back for ten months, respecting the alliance which for a third of a century had bound it to the Central empires. But longer than this it could not disregard the call of the Entente powers. They were fighting for a principle of nationality to which Italy is indebted for its existence. They were fighting for principles of law and justice of which Italy has been an exponent since the time of the Romans.

"Furthermore Italy could no longer delay solution of the question of the Italian provinces that were still subject to persecution by Austria. It was imperative that Italy should contest the frontier imposed by Austria after the war of 1866 which gave its northern neighbors possession of all the gates and passes leading into Italy. It was imperative also that Italy should gain supremacy in the Adriatic, without which it could never be said to enjoy liberty and peace in full security.

"Although unprepared for war, we fortunately possessed in General Cadorna a powerful organizer and a cautious strategist. Taking the Italian army on its modest peace footing as a backbone, he transformed it, through miracles of energy and military science, into a powerful, efficient, brilliant modern army, which on May 24, 1915, the day after war was declared on Austria, suddenly threw itself across the whole frontier into the enemy's territory.

Advantage Gained.

"In doing this General Cadorna won two principal advantages; first, he gained the initiative; secondly, he made Austria the scene of the warfare. Throughout the campaign Cadorna aimed to render his allies the greatest possible services.

"Italy began its operations just at the time when the Russians were obliged to retreat. The strong army Cadorna threw across the northern border menacing Austria may have saved that Russian retreat from a complete disaster. Similarly, when the Germans attacked Verdun, Cadorna started a strong offensive along the Isonzo river, which prevented Austria from sending to the aid of the German crown prince large numbers of troops and artillery which had been prepared for that purpose.

"Equal advantages have recently been obtained by Austria's temporary invasion of a small section of the Italian Trentino front in the Asiago district. If Austria had not entered all its forces in this enterprise it would have been much more difficult for Russia to launch the marvellous offensive which it is now conducting. Profiting by the situation, General Cadorna attacked the Austrians so energetically that their removal from the Alps to the Carpathians to fight the Russians has been out of the question.

"In Albania General Cadorna likewise aided our allies. It being materially impossible to save Serbia and Montenegro, he transformed the Albanian seaport of Avlona into an impregnable entrenched camp, threatening and checking the Austrians in the same manner that the allied troops at Saloniki have held back the Bulgarians.

"Above all others in this war stands our king, modest soldier and fervent patriot. He and King Albert are the only sovereigns in this war who have never abandoned their places at the front.

Highest Ever Known.

"The difficulties of the war which Italy is waging may be understood only by visiting its battle fronts. They are stretched along the highest altitudes at which warfare has ever been known. With all the advantageous positions in the prior possession of the Austrians, our enemies have to be dug out of their nests, 10,000 feet up amid eternal snows. To its natural defenses Austria has added the most powerful modern system of fortifications.

"Still the Italians have gained ground, and all along have conquered territory on the right bank of the Isonzo except at Gorizia and Tolmino which are entrenched camps defended by almost impregnable mountains, part of the Carso plateau the High Monte Nero Ridge, the Ampezzo territory, including Cortina, and part of the famous Dolomite road, which is the shortest communication between Toblach and Trent. We had almost reached Rovereto when the Austrian incursion into Trentino obliged us to retreat within our own frontier.

"But with this exception the Austrians have always been on the defensive and have lost about 200 towns and villages, 40,000 prisoners, dozens of cannon, hundreds of machine guns, several thousand rifles, all of which has more than ordinary value because they were taken in a mountainous country where it is difficult to replace captured artillery and stores."
